Free Arthritis Exercise Classes Near You in England

Quick Answer: Free arthritis exercise classes in England are available through Exercise on Referral (ask your GP), leisure centre Active Health schemes, Arthritis UK community programmes, and Age UK. Many NHS Trusts fund free exercise specifically for people with long-term conditions including arthritis.

Regular exercise is one of the most effective treatments for arthritis, recommended by NICE as a core management strategy. Free or subsidised exercise classes are available across England — here's how to find them.

Exercise on Referral (GP Referral Schemes)

Most GP practices can refer patients with arthritis to subsidised or free exercise programmes at local leisure centres. Ask your GP specifically about Exercise on Referral or Physical Activity Referral schemes in your area. These provide a 12–16 week supervised programme designed for people with long-term conditions.

What Exercise on Referral Includes

- Initial assessment by a qualified exercise professional
- Tailored exercise plan for your condition
- Supervised sessions at a leisure centre or gym
- Progress reviews and ongoing support

- Often includes hydrotherapy or pool access
